Social responsibility in every activity of the business.

SiSo aims to achieve the highest return on depreciated ICT equipment. This remunerative residual value is created based on high-quality services. SiSo assumes social responsibility in every activity of the business.

The main points here are social and environmental aspects. Thus we explicitly aim for protection of the environment and contribute to ICT development in Third World countries. Permanent development in the broadest sense of the word.

SiSo's aim for successful enterprise is embedded in a policy that focuses on sound social enterprise, based on the cornerstones quality, innovation and social responsibility. We like to fulfill our promises to our clients, shareholders, co-workers, business relations and the global society as a whole.

SiSo's mission is also tuned to the promises below:

"To be a professional and high qualitative ICT End-of-life service provider, meeting and exceeding expectations of our clients in an environmental respecting manner".

Embedding in operational management

Social and environmental aspects are embedded in our core activities. We operate in accordance with the environmental rules for recycling outdated ICT equipment, as formulated by the VROM department. We'll also see to it that stored information on pc's doesn't become public, but gets wiped meticulously. For this purpose we use the highest international standards from Blancco.

We make an effort to fill in our social involvement in the countries in which we operate. In 2004, we developed a new policy in the field of social involvement under the name "SiSo Donations Fund".

This policy aims to provide children with better access to ICT education. For this purpose, SiSo puts a certain percentage of her purchased equipment at the disposal of charitable causes.

In order to achieve our aims, we closely cooperate with our clients. A recent example is the cooperation with KPN on the "1 Million computers for Africa" project.

Business Principles for SiSo employees

Our aim for successful enterprise is closely connected to the passion and performance of our employees. For that purpose we established business principles for our staff members.

We aim for being an alluring employer and to offer our staff a pleasant workplace in a company that they're proud of. We consider it our duty to offer our employees good terms of employment and safe working conditions, with ample opportunities for professional and personal development.
